HILL'S ADVICE TAKEN

The Issue Outlined by the Senator's Famous Letter

To the Constitution Is On—Cleveland Men Had Their Revenge in Hill's Defeat.

Chicago, Ill., July 7.—(Special.)—The democratic convention began its work today by notifying Senator Hill, of New York, that his advice, that the presidential campaign of 1896 must be fought with independent free coinage as the leading issue, had been accepted.

In order that there might be no misunderstanding about it, a straightout free coinage man was elected as temporary chairman over the recommendation of the national committee, that Senator Hill was the man for the place. The national committee selected him because it had a good majority and wanted a good man, and the convention defeated him because it didn't want a man who had advised the party to make a fight on a certain line and who had plunged head-first into a bomb-proof when a cyclone of his own making was passing. That convention wanted a man whose views didn't conflict with those of over two-thirds of its total membership, and it chose Senator Daniel instead of Senator Hill. No personal feeling whatever entered into the selection. It was a choice between measures, not men, and the meaning of it is that the mission of Mr. Whitney to Chicago has been a failure, and that it is now in a state of disastrous collapse.

A remarkable feature of the situation is that the men who, four years ago, were leading the fight against Mr. Hill, charging him with every crime in the political calendar, and dubbing him in their gentler moments as "a peanut politician," are the very men who are loudest in proclaiming his virtues before the convention, and even the only Dickinson, of Michigan, who swore by the great lakes that no man of Hill's caliber should ever receive the vote of his state for president, and who stroked his whiskers in exultation at every step toward the humiliation of the New Yorker in the convention four years ago, now lustily proclaim over his own signature that "it is a comfort and an inspiration for all good men here to have a great leader from New York, like David B. Hill," and that it "is a pleasure to see Mr. Cleveland's good workers, who are here, acting as Mr. Hill's trusted lieutenants and glorying in his magnificent leadership."

Spit upon and spurned by these men four years ago, Senator Hill has let them lead him as their offering to the slaughter block today. There was no excuse or justification for it, unless it be that having had a taste of his blood four years ago, when they humiliated him, and two years later, when they betrayed him as the democratic nominee for governor of New York, they had a yearning for another sacrifice that might exhibit his bleeding form to the country as further punishment for the part he played in the last presidential campaign against Mr. Cleveland.

The platform will be reported tomorrow. It is already decided on, and that it will be outspoken in favor of free coinage, independent and unlimited, at 16 to 1, no one doubts. It will contain a Cuban plank, extending sympathy and favoring the recognition of the belligerent rights of the insurgents, and probably annexation, if it can be accomplished by negotiation. It will favor a tariff for revenue sufficient to meet general expenses and will not smack of tariff reform on a free trade basis.

The platform will be broadly and deeply American, and it will appeal to the patriotic sentiment of people who believe that this country is big enough and strong enough to walk alone.

The committee on credentials will ratify the action of the national committee, except in the Nebraska decision, which it will reverse, seating the regular delegation, headed by Mr. Bryan, whose claim to regularity is as valid as that of any delegation in the convention.

As to candidates, all is in uncertainty, and prediction amounts to nothing more than speculation. Bland and Boies are the prime favorites, but with the prospect that under the two-thirds rule either can and will prevent the nomination of the other. After them, no man knows what a day may bring forth.

CLARK HOWELL.

yet stands on that Elmhurst speech and the letter he wrote Clark Howell, but Hill represents New York, and New York is for gold. Therefore, as he is put forward to represent the people of his state as their mouthpiece, he feels that he must speak their wishes and act in accordance. His manner of accepting defeat today has popularized him with all the delegates and the platform to be adopted, with the exception of the silver plank, will be largely framed by Hill.

The silver majority showed in the convention today that they were far from the disorganized mob Don Dickinson characterized them. They assumed the reins with dignity and started the drive with a firm hand.

Everything worked as smooth as well-oiled machinery in the open convention. On the temporary chairman vote, when John W. Daniel was elected over Hill, the silver people didn't show a two-thirds vote. It stood 566 to 249, but in the minority vote were several silver men who thought it well to give the gold side this recognition. Again, on this vote only two delegates were allowed to each territory, where, under permanent organization, the territories will have six votes each and all of them are for silver. There will be thirty-six territorial votes. The silver vote to the silver votes in Maine, Massachusetts, Florida and other supposedly gold states, will give the silver men a full two-thirds.

On a candidate, however, this two-thirds of silver votes, it is not believed, can agree. Therefore, the 300 gold men votes will be a factor in naming the presidential nominee.

The Iowa men were the first to realize this today and to make friends with the gold people. Seven Iowa delegates voted for Hill on a public roll call of the delegation. Of course these votes did not count. Iowa's full twenty-six silver votes went for Daniel, being instructed to vote as a unit. But the evidence of fairness and friendship to the New Yorker as a democrat on the part of the Georgia people, had its effect.

The Bland people are using this tonight against Boies, claiming that he is flirting with the gold people and that all true silver men must stand together.

Boies has gained some.

Bland has not grown any today—does not have; yet there is no enthusiasm for either of the leading candidates. Many delegations have declared for one or the other on the first ballot as a place to deposit their votes until other developments manifest themselves.

Bland and Boies Seem To Be Favorites, but the Outcome Is All an Uncertainty.

Chicago, July 7.—(Special.)—The wisest man in Chicago tonight could name the number of the stars as easily as he could tell what will happen tomorrow. Fascinating uncertainty envelopes the situation. Today settled nothing but what the country knew before—the supremacy of silver.

The great contest is yet to come. To

"Nobody," he said; "nobody."

The shrewd and brainy Algeid, the leader of the Illinois contingent and one of the leaders here, had a Bland color to his views. He thought it would be Bland, but he admitted that it might be somebody else. Lank Governor Stone, of Missouri, thought it looked like Bland. Senator Walsh said it looked like Bland and Boies. Culberson, the governor of Texas, told me that he was not prophet enough to tell who would win. He had a Bland leaning and would vote that way.

The eastern men are out of it. Today's developments wiped them off the map, so far as figuring influentially in the proceedings is concerned. They had heard about the silver forces. They met them today. They will figure but little in naming the man.

Wants Boies or Bland.
Georgia—even Georgia—is undecided. She has two favorites—Bland and Boies—and "That," said the governor, smiling, "is one of the secrets which the good Lord has not confided to me."

"Who appears to be leading?" I asked. "To me, Bland seems to have the advantage," was the reply, "but you know I'm for Bland. I believe he will be nominated. The convention should finish its work tomorrow by all means. I want to have a session tonight. There's no reason why we shouldn't. There's lots of talk that must be heard, I suppose. I do not favor a long convention."

The Texas Big Three.
Governor Charles Culberson, ex-Governor Reagan and ex-Governor Hogg formed a notable group in the convention. They were constantly shaking hands and giving the tidings of the Lone Star state. A big white star shone from each lapel. The Texas trio are for Bland.

Culberson told me that he believed in the success of the Missouri man.

Senator Walsh Still for Teller.

Chicago, Ill., July 7.—To The Constitution: I have no opinion that amounts to a conviction as to a reliable forecast as to who will be the nominee of the convention. Bland will develop the most strength on the first ballot, but I do not believe he will be able to hold his forces together for any length of time. Boies is a strong possibility. He may grow in favor as the most available candidate, but there is no reasonable probability of his nomination under the two-thirds rule; as it looks today, it is not probable that either Bland or Boies can receive the nomination. I have reference to the two-thirds rule remaining in force.

The Georgia delegation will, of course, vote for a democratic candidate and do its best to secure the nomination of Boies or Bland. The delegation has not been polled and I am not able to say which candidate its vote will be cast for.

As regards Mr. Teller, I have not changed my views as to the advisability of his nomination. On the contrary, my opinions have become convictions that with him victory awaits the democratic party in November. The convention may finish its labors before adjourning tomorrow. I think that the delegates from the east have become so thoroughly convinced of the determined spirit of the silver men that they have abandoned all hope of changing their convictions on the financial question.

PATRICK WALSH.

will vote for one of them. The Georgians held two meetings today. They counseled first this morning. They talked over the situation informally.

Mr. McBride wanted to nail Georgia to some of the presidential floats tonight. He urged early settlement. It was the only important question remaining to be settled by the delegation.

Hal Lewis thought tomorrow early enough. He moved for a meeting tomorrow morning that carried, but the national committee fixed on an early meeting hour and Chairman Walsh called a meeting of Georgians tonight.

It was short and fruitless. It was decided to hold a meeting at the convention hall tomorrow morning. Then Georgia will line up for the fight. After talking with nearly every one of the delegates it is impossible to say how Georgia will vote. Bland or Boies—one of these heroes of democracy will get her vote. Perhaps it will be Bland. The south seems to be going to the grand old Missouriian. Alabama, however, stepped into the ranks of the Boies men today. Boies has made a winning canvass so far, perhaps one of the most remarkable ever made at a national convention. The men who are making it are not accustomed to making presidents, but a more sterling regiment of honest men you can find nowhere.

J. A. Van Warner, who holds Boies's place as delegate in the convention, said today, in the Georgia headquarters, that Boies's campaign fund represented the gifts of a great army of loyal Iowans' dimes, quarters, half dollars, dollars and larger sums. It is essentially a democratic force. These Iowans are red-hot for their idol.

Fighting for Georgia's Vote.

Georgia has been bored by many boomers, but her delegates have been wisely deliberate. They are going to weigh all the facts and view the situation from every standpoint. The Bland men, the Boies men, the Teller men, the Matthews men and other men have piled every influence and argument to draw the Georgians within their ranks.

There are no bosses in this delegation, and no sort of effort has been made by any of them to place the delegation in anybody's column. When the first ballot is taken by the Georgians tomorrow, it will represent what is the honest sentiment of the delegation.

Georgians Get an Ovation.

Georgia's banner stood well to the front in the convention today; she sat behind Florida and in front of Illinois. The tremendous hall was filling up when the Georgians came in. It was nearly noon, and they marched down like conquerors. Captain Ben Howell and Senator Walsh recognized many friends among the delegates, and as they passed in the bands were playing, and they struck up "Dixie." The convention was on its feet in an instant, cheering the Georgians to the echo as they took their seats. It was the first real demonstration of the convention.

Senator Walsh cast the vote of Georgia. He made a striking and impressive figure in the convention hall and was constantly surrounded. Senator Jones, of Arkansas, was the leader of the silver forces. He sat in front of Senator Walsh.

Gold and Silver Shake Hands.

William C. Whitney entered the hall just behind Georgia. The gold men broke loose. Whitney stood in front and beamed and bowed.

He captivated the stalwart figure of Jones, the leader of silver, and he made his way through the crowd to where the Arkansas man sat. Jones arose, smiling to greet him. The two leaders shook hands. It was like two fighters crossing hands before going into the ring. Within five minutes the great fight was on. Whitney smiled upon Georgia, and edged his way back. The first courtesy of the fight had been paid.

Algeid Keeps Mum.

One of the silent forces of the convention is Illinois's governor—Algeid. He did not lift his voice in the meeting today, but he was wielding a powerful influence.

Algeid sat silent, watchful and dignified throughout.

"Governor," I asked him, "who seems to be winning the nomination?"

are at a formative setate. A clear majority of them are looking for the hand wagon. "They don't believe either Bland or Boies will be the successful man. As between the two, Bland stands the best chance of winning. More votes are resting upon him as a temporary rock than any one else and if the gold men should commence plunking their three hundred votes upon some compromise man like Stevenson or Matthews or Bill Morrison, there may be a stampede for Bland on the part of the silver delegates to save the issue."

Yet the bound-up Boies people say they will never go for Bland. If the McLean people and the Indiana people stand out with them, Bland can never be nominated without the gold vote.

Thus it will be seen that the situation as between candidates is complicated in the extreme and, as Hill says, John McLean, with his Ohio vote, has quite a good grip upon the key to the situation. John McLean has a barrel, and then McLean is a good silver man and a politician of no mean ability. Thus it may be marked down that John McLean will have a decided voice in naming the candidate. As he expects to play second fiddle on the ticket, he wants a man sure to win at the top. Right now he is playing Boies as the strong man, but down in deep confidence McLean thinks a great deal of Teller's ability to finally win the nation. In brief, this is the complicated situation. You can figure it out down in Georgia and predict the winner with as much degree of certainty as we can here. E. W. B.

making up the permanent organization and the platform. Tomorrow the fight will perhaps go on and it will be a fight all through, but there is so much silver that the chances are against a bolt.

Both Hill and Whitney said tonight that there would be no bolt. Whitney is disappointed that he has been unable to accomplish anything, but he is too much of a thoroughbred to show it in his utterances. "I shall do the best I can and accept the result whatever it be," he said tonight.

Predicts a Dark Horse.

Bland and Boies are the favorites, but it is anybody's race yet. The shrewdest politicians are predicting a dark horse. "Keep John McLean in view," said David B. Hill to me tonight.

"Do you have an idea he may win?" I asked.

"Not that—I don't say that—but John McLean is a smart politician. Look how Boies has been boosted today. He has made great gains. Somebody is helping him, and his friends are putting knives into the Teller tank."

"Have you any idea who will win?" "No; nobody can tell now. New York's vote will perhaps yet be needed to name the man. The New Yorkers sought the sentiment among the eastern delegates at silver men yesterday; now the New Yorkers will remain in the background and maybe they will be sought," remarked David, significantly.

By the way, Hill is as chipper as ever since his defeat today. He takes it as a setback, not as a blow at him, but as a maintenance of the principles of the cause on the part of the silver men. As I told in these dispatches, Hill expected defeat, but he had the nerve to face it up, and Hill has the nerve to face defeat as well as victory.

Hill's Position.

Senator Hill has been in a queer position all through this fight. At heart he

They Hear from Friends of Teller and Bland.

Chicago, July 7.—The delegations of North and South Carolina met together tonight and gave a hearing to Senator Pettigrew and Representative Towne, who presented arguments in favor of the nomination of Senator Teller. The two delegations listened to the arguments, but took no action. Later in the evening the friends of Bland addressed the delegations from the Carolinas separately. Up to midnight no decision as to which candidate these states would support had been reached.

League for the purpose of selecting the proper chairman and guiding the silver men of the full committee.

It was decided that a recess until evening be taken. Accordingly when the committee resumed its session a motion to adjourn until 8 o'clock p. m., was put and carried. The sub-committee had a consultation with the silver leaders and a state was ready when the full committee reassembled at the Sherman house at 8 o'clock.

The Night Session.

When the committee reassembled at 8 o'clock the state which it was understood had been prepared was all ready and was a surprise. Instead of the veteran, Isham G. Harris, of Tennessee, who had been conceded to be the probable choice, Senator Stephen M. White, of California, was substituted. The only reason mentioned informally for the change was that the members thought it undesirable to have both the presiding officers from the southern states.

George C. Gilbert, of Kentucky, placed Senator White's name in nomination and briefly presented his special qualifications for the office.

Gordon Wood, of New Hampshire, moved to make Senator Hill, of New York, the choice of the committee. A roll call first assistant secretary: Peff Pollard, of Missouri, assistant reading clerk: R. R. Wade, of Tennessee, reading clerk: N. R. Walker, of Florida, assistant reading clerk.

AMONG THE DELEGATES.

Chicago, July 7.—(Special).—The Alabama delegation to the democratic national convention went into the center of the storm disturbances today and began a bold fight for a rule of the majority. It was Henry D. Clayton, national committeeman from Alabama, who introduced the minority report, substituting the name of Senator Daniel, of Virginia, for that of Senator Hill. Not only did Clayton support the substituting—the first speech in the convention—but he made the closing speech. Attack after attack on the part of eastern delegates he answered completely and logically in his closing words.

Charles E. Waller, too, was among the foremost, insisting that according to democratic precedence the minority should permit the majority to have a hand in the organization of the convention.

The Alabama delegation has been only once before has he ever left the state. His first trip was to Chattanooga. He is now in Chicago. On the train the members of the delegation regarded Hutchinson with stories of the terrors of Chicago and of the green goods men, and the confidence people. They portrayed him to himself as the first victim of the dishonest clutches of these evil-disposed people and accentuated the distressing inefficiency of Chicago's police force.

The world's fair city was not reached by the Georgia delegation until after 5 o'clock in the afternoon. At 9 o'clock that night, Hutchinson was missing. His room-mate was worried, but knew the Cherokee man's undoubted courage and his magnificent strength. It was 4 o'clock in the morning when the roommate was aroused by some one shaking him roughly.

Hutchinson had returned.

The sleeper rubbed his eyes. "Say, now," inquired the Cherokee man, seriously, "wasn't you folks just fooling me about those swindlers? I've been hunting for one all night and I ain't struck even a trail."

In the meantime it will be remembered that Hutchinson is only seven feet tall.

Never has there been a rebuke more complete, more effective, than was that administered by the Virginia delegation to Senator Hill and his seventy-one followers. The vote was on the minority report, which recommended that the name of Senator Daniel, of Virginia, be substituted for that of Senator Hill as temporary chairman. When New York state was called a member of the delegation named "seventy-one nays." Chairman Harrity smiled—he paused dramatically. He reported the number of nays, then added exultantly:

"As I understand it, New York has seventy-two votes, and Senator Hill refrains from voting."

The audience cheered and the delegates were liberal with their applause. Both Daniel and Hill were on the chairman's platform.

It was not long before it came Virginia's time to answer.

"Virginia," called the assistant secretary, "Virginia votes nay!" came the quick response. Daniel's entire delegation had voted for Hill. The great convention delegates and onlookers—rose in a mighty throng and sent up a tribute of shouts that set the air trembling. Just at that moment Daniel could have been nominated for the presidency.

I had a talk tonight with Major Moses P. Handy, a man who is as solid for the gold standard, since he is a staunch republican and holds to republican doctrine, as he is for McKinley. It may be truthfully said that there is no man in the country who looks at a political situation with a truer eye or keener discretion than does Major Handy. I asked his opinion of the situation as it had developed to date.

"A number of newspaper men," he said, "are just now engaged in telling how disorganized the free coinage men are. To my mind I have never seen a body of men act with more earnestness, more unanimity or more enthusiasm than did the free coinage men today. The silver men came here, many of them, from the country. They had heard of the gold brick and they were on the lookout for it. They saw the gold brick in the person of Senator Hill and they very properly refused to accept it. Of Senator Hill I will say that it is my opinion that if he had remained true to his once uttered convictions he would have been selected as the nominee of the democratic party to make the race against Major McKinley."

A man who has done excellent work for the Boies boom is Lewis T. Genuing, of Iowa. He is a tall, slim gentleman who denies that he has ever had a title or that his name was ever pronounced correctly. Genuing made a splendid impression on the Georgia delegation. He began in a happy fashion, saying among other things: "No, I am not a Georgian, I have no cousins or uncles that are Georgians. My wife is not from Georgia; but, well, I've been to Georgia."

There were consternation in the Texas delegation this morning. It was all about ex-Governor Hogg, and while the Texas delegates were fuming and fretting the ex-governor was quietly sleeping. The ex-governor is clean-shaven; that is, his friends all thought so until they saw his picture in a Chicago paper this morning. In the newspaper cut ex-Governor Hogg wore luxuriant whiskers. However, his pensive presence soon proved the picture not authentic and the Texans pledged his health in oolong tea.

Among the Texas delegates are Congressman Bailey, ex-Governor Reagan and Governor Culberson.

It is not often that Alaska and Florida get together. In the convention their respective delegations sat side by side.

phase of the fight with the "sound money" men. Each of these motions was assigned to a designated leader to present at the proper time and word was passed round among all the silver cohorts that resolutions offered by these persons expressed the views of the party and were expected to receive the solid support of the silver men. It was openly stated in the conference that this course had been regarded necessary by the course of the Chicago newspapers, which, in spite of the pledge given on their behalf to the national committee when Chicago was selected as a meeting place, that the press of the city would report the proceedings of the convention with fairness, had not failed to distort and misrepresent with all kinds of untruths the plans and purposes of the silver men. Delegates were therefore cautioned not to be misled by Chicago newspaper statements, but to follow the lines marked out by their own steering committee.

Arrangements Seemed Bad.

At 10 o'clock this morning the crowds of delegates and onlookers were constantly increasing numbers at the front of the Coliseum. But all the doors were closed. The newspaper men strove in vain to raise the blockade, so far as they were concerned. The orders of the sergeant-at-arms, stupidly conceived and as stupidly executed, kept them out until, at last, a few of them managed to effect an entrance and to make the way clear for many of their associates. But in the meantime without any imaginable good reason for it, delegates and alternates were kept out in the broiling sunshine, victims of the incompetents "clothed with a little brief authority." One might have supposed that the best and easiest way was to admit everybody entitled to admission as they presented their cards or badges. But instead of that they were detained for hours until it suited the caprice of the sergeant-at-arms, to order the doors to be opened. Then, at 11:30 o'clock, there was a sweeping of the human waves through the vestibule of the hall (the partition cut off from the rest of the building) and the seats began to fill up to the music of a brass band playing popular airs.

As the hour of noon drew near the sections assigned to the delegates were gradually occupied. Occasionally a large delegation entered the hall with banners and flags, and accompanied by bands of music. The Iowa delegation bore a large silk flag on which were imprinted the benevolent looking features of its candidate, Horace Boies.

They cheered "Dixie."

Another delegation was attended by a splendid band, which played in succession,

HOLGREN, of Ohio.
The Plain Dealer Man who Has Led the Silver Fight in Northern Ohio.
"The Red, White and Blue," "Marching Through Georgia," "Maryland, My Maryland," and "Dixie." When the first strains of "Dixie" were heard, the whole audience stood up and cheered enthusiastically and at that moment, as if by prearrangement, Senator Daniel, of Virginia, appeared and took a seat on the platform. Senator Vest, of Missouri; Senator Lindsay, of Kentucky, and Senator Stewart, of Nevada, with Representative McMillan, of Tennessee, had at the time also taken seats on the platform. William C. Whitney appeared as a proxy (quite unexpectedly) and took his seat among the New York delegates without any demonstration. So did ex-Postmaster General Bissell. Governor William E. Russell, of Massachusetts, also took his seat as a proxy among the delegates from his state.

Senator Hill and ex-Governor Rowell entered the hall at 12:20 o'clock, followed by ex-Lieutenant Governor Sheehan and were greeted with cheers—many delegates rising to do them honor. Senator Blackburn, of Kentucky, came in soon afterward and was also honored with cheers. The Pennsylvania delegation occupied a half dozen of the front rows on the seats and was conspicuous by the fact that each delegate carried in his hand a small flag, and wore on his breast a wide red ribbon, bearing the name of "Matison."

Convention Called to Order.

At 1 o'clock the convention was called to order by Mr. Harrity, of Pennsylvania, chairman of the democratic national committee, who asked that all present should arise and stand while prayer was offered by Rev. Ernest M. Stiles, rector of Grace Episcopal church, Chicago.

Then Chairman Harrity, with deliberate tones, said: "Gentlemen of the convention, by direction of the democratic national committee I desire to report the following as the temporary organization of the convention: Temporary chairman, David B. Hill, of New York." Then there was an outbreak of applause which lasted for two minutes. A delegate from Minnesota got up to make a motion and the chairman, intending to ring for order, rang the bell for the band to play, remarking as he rang it up, amid laughter: "I rang the wrong bell."

The rest of the organization was read as follows: "For temporary secretary, Simon B. Shouse, of Indiana, for sergeant at arms, Colonel John I. Martin, of Missouri. What is the pleasure of the convention?" Mr. Harrity asked, "on the report as made in the democratic national committee?" On that Mr. Clayton, a delegate from Alabama, arose and advanced to the platform and said: "Gentlemen of the democratic national convention, on behalf of twenty-three members of your national committee as opposed to twenty-seven, and as I believe, in accordance with the wishes of the great majority of this nation (cheers), I am authorized to present to this convention a minority recommendation, which I shall move as a substitute for a part of the motion made by the chairman of the national committee."

Minority Report Submitted.

Mr. Clayton then read the minority report, as follows:

"To the Democratic National Convention.—The undersigned members of the democratic national committee respectfully recommend that the name of Hon. John W.

Daniel, of Virginia, be substituted in the place of David B. Hill, of New York, and that Hon. John W. Daniel be chosen temporary chairman of this convention.

"Henry D. Clayton, of Alabama; Thos. C. Rea, of Arkansas; Michael F. Tarpey, of California; Thomas A. Hendricks, of Colorado; Samuel Pascoe, of Florida; Clark Howell, of Georgia; Wm. C. Whitney, of Idaho; C. W. Blair, of Kansas; M. E. S. Keating, of Nevada; F. H. Busbee, of North Carolina; William C. Gentry, of North Dakota; J. D. Dodson, of South Carolina; P. J. Otey, of Virginia; J. W. Burton, of Utah; W. J. Kuykendall, of Wyoming; C. W. Shannon, of Arizona; J. L. Norris, of District of Columbia; H. B. Ferguson, of New York; F. M. Richardson, of Oklahoma; J. L. Owen, of Indian Territory.

Mr. Clayton concluded by demanding the call of states and a roll call. Mr. C. S. Thomas, of Colorado, seconded the minority report. Cries of roll call were raised and Mr. Harrity said:

"It may as well be understood, gentlemen, that as long as the present occupant is in the chair the proceedings will be conducted in a regular, orderly manner."

This announcement was received with general applause.

Mr. Allan McDermott, of New Jersey, was then recognized to speak in support of the majority report.

Ex-Governor Waller, of Connecticut, was recognized when Mr. McDermott sat down and he promised as he began his remarks from the platform not to delay the convention long. His resonant voice rang over the hall and strong and was heard in every part of the hall. The names of Hill and Daniel, he said, should be joined together and cheered together, and some of the delegates took him at his word and gave a cheer for both.

Mr. Waller suggested that Hill should be elected temporary chairman and Daniel permanent chairman. If there were other arrangements made he hoped they would be wiped out and the chivalrous and courteous thing done at the opening of the convention. He had been told by republican friends on the way to Chicago that the gold men would receive no courtesies, but he knew this was not so.

"We Are Here to Stay."

"Fellow-democrats," he cried, "we can stand you beating us with votes; we can stand any man you nominate, provided he is an honest man. We are in this convention to stay." (Cheers.) As he declared with uplifted hand, "We are here to stay," the convention cheered, and responded still more enthusiastically. He was going to be here until the last man has voted, and I will stay with the janitor and see him home."

Continuing Governor Waller said he supposed that the majority outnumbered the minority two to one. They intended to turn down Hill in ignominy. It would be considered a personal matter. (Cries of "No.") If Hill were selected, he would make a speech that would be full of sound sense and would be full of truth. If he were represented both sides. If Hill were refused the right to make his speech from the platform he would make it from the floor, and it would go to the country the same.

"Are you going to do it?" he asked. A chorus of "Yes" went up.

"Gentlemen, you are going to do it, are you?" cried the speaker, and again the affirmative shout went up.

He added: "Turn down David B. Hill and I will tell you what we will do, my southern friends; we will fight you here and elsewhere. We will fight you until you are sorry for your indiscretion of this day."

An outburst of sentiment, followed by cheers and hisses, greeted this statement. All through the latter portion of Waller's speech attempts were made to cry him down, and he finally responded by warning the convention that he would occupy the platform all day in order to make his appeal for party unity and took his seat amid cheers from the Connecticut delegation.

Mr. Charles S. Thomas, of Colorado, seconded the motion of Mr. Clayton. That was remarks in sympathy with the feeling of a large part of the audience, was shown by the frequent applause which punctuated his speech.

Mr. Thomas concluded with an argument that the adoption of the minority was not against, but in accordance with democratic precedent.

Charles E. Waller of Alabama, next took the platform in support of the minority report. He disclaimed any intention by the action they were about to take to reflect upon their eastern friends. They had given New York every democratic nomination for the last twenty-five years, and western and southern democrats had stood by them. Why, he asked, could not eastern men do as they did in the west, when they had lost a campaign—give the victors the entire management of the party organization? He closed by saying that he and his friends thought they were entitled to this nomination, and that the committee ought to have it.

M. F. Tarpey told the convention, in seconding the motion to adopt the minority report, that the democratic party had been losing the faith of its adherents because it had failed to keep faith with the voters by adhering to the platform. (Cheers.) The keynote of the convention, he said, was silver, and he thought a silver man should be selected.

Fellows Champions Hill.

Short, stout and smooth-faced John R. Fellows, of New York, walked down the main aisle to talk in favor of Hill, and as he was recognized a great cheering broke forth from the New York and other eastern delegations. He was received with cheers as he came to the platform. He paid a tribute to the splendid ability and long-established democracy of the gentleman from Virginia—Mr. Daniel—and had been nominated to a place on the ticket by this convention, New York would gladly have given him support. But grave principles were involved in the question now presented. Democratic traditions were to be trampled down and the whole life of the senator from Virginia repelled the suggestion that he could sanction this unheard-of and unnecessary act. He proceeded to show the regularity of the action of the national committee, which, he said, for a longer period than the lives of any delegate present, had presented for the purpose of organization the names of officers to temporarily fill the chairs, and his action in this regard had never before been questioned. He characterized the plan now proposed as following a republican precedent, disowned, denounced and spit upon. (Cheers.) And why was it, he asked, with strong emphasis, that all the rest of the report was accepted and only the distinguished gentleman from New York was rejected?

"You cannot escape," he said, "the distrust and suspicion this will arouse, and trust there will be no permanent ill effects."

He recognized the right of the majority to control the convention when permanently organized. The temporary organization could effect nothing. Why not permit the national committee to stand in its entirety? He referred to the precedent of the convention four years ago when Mr. Cleveland was nominated (Mr. Cleveland, having been received with cheers), when a temporary chairman opposed to the candidate who had a majority of the convention then allowed to preside over the temporary organization of the convention and afterwards the majority took charge and was taken and the vote resulted in the selection of Senator White by 33 to 6.

The six states which voted for Senator Hill were: Delaware, Massachusetts, Maryland, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

A significant feature of the meeting was the absence of Frederick R. Coudert, representing New York, and James A. Ailes, of Connecticut. Four other states and territories were not represented.

Hon. William J. Bryan, of Nebraska, was in the committee room some time and there was continual talk in his absence about making him the permanent presiding officer of the convention. At the suggestion of his friends, however, his name has not been presented for the reason that he might be a candidate for president before the convention.

Thomas J. Cogan, of Cincinnati, was the choice of the committee for secretary of the convention. This office was supposed to have been picked out for Major Towie, the aged but energetic secretary of the bimetallic committee, but he did not move enough votes at the time when they counted.

A Fight on Martin.

Sergeant-at-arms Martin was the object of sharp criticism, and an effort was made by half a dozen radical silver members whose names were withheld to turn him down and recommend another person for permanent sergeant-at-arms. The six men so voted when the question took the form of a resolution and when they were defeated it was announced that they reserved the right to bring in a minority report recommending the removal of Colonel Martin.

The chief complaint is that Colonel Martin did not prove himself capable of handling the convention efficiently either

MONEY FOR MERCER

Rockafeller's Proposition—General Macon News.

Macon, Ga., July 7.—(Special).—The friends of Mercer university are in fine spirits to-day. Colonel B. L. Willingham received a letter from Rev. B. F. Riley, at Athens, stating that at his solicitation Mr. C. W. Huggins, of Athens, Ga., had agreed to have given $2,000 to the endowment fund of Mercer university, $1,000 of which is spot cash. Rev. Mr. Riley asked to whom should the money be paid, and he has been written that it should be paid to the trustees. Mr. Huggins, of Macon, treasurer of Mercer university. Some time ago Mr. Hood promised to give $2,000 to the same fund. Rev. Mr. Riley wrote to Mr. Hood at the request of Rev. Mr. Hood has agreed to give $2,000. Rev. Mr. Riley spot cash. The trustees of Mr. Hood would not have promptly imitated by other friends of Mercer.

At the recent commencement of Mercer university the trustees intended to increase the endowment of Mercer $100,000. Of this amount Rockefeller has agreed to give $50,000, provided the trustees raised the remaining $50,000. The trustees intend to do his during the next twelve months. An active campaign is being carried on in order to build a new bridge across the river.

Bridge Contract Canceled.

The county commissioners met in regular monthly session today and decided to notify the Ohio Bridge Company, of Toledo, (filed for record in the county clerk's office) to build a new iron bridge across the Ocmulgee river at the foot of Spring street, between the railroad and the city limits. The commissioners the plans and specifications for the bridge. The reason for this action was that the company had failed to comply in accordance with the laws of the state. The contract was let some weeks ago at $100,000. The company had failed to pay the commissioners required the company to give a bond for the completion of the bridge. The contract. The company forwarded a bond, but as it was signed entirely by non-residents of Georgia, the commissioners declined to receive it. The company forwarded a bond signed by a resident of one Georgia security, whereas the state law requires two. After waiting some time for the company to furnish a proper bond, the commissioners having failed to do so, the commissioners took the action of canceling the contract.

Cotton Sold.

Today Williamham's warehouse sold 550 bales of cotton. This was the first sale of cotton in some time. The price was not known where the sale is the good effect of the Cotton convention.

The third annual mid-summer fair, one of the country's largest, at Irwin, will be held at Tifton, Ga., Wednesday.

Thursday and Friday, July 10th, 11th, and 12th. The fair will be held on the grounds of the county display of ripe peaches, pears, plums, apples, grapes, melons and other fruits, as well as garden and field products, giving a splendid object lesson of the resources of the county. The greatest fruit belt in the north center of the fair will be given to the orchard. An opportunity will be given to visit the mammoth orchards and vineyards, and see the fruit picked, packed and shipped by the carload. During the fair there will be held a series of lectures, and a series of talks, to give their experience in their southern homes. Visitors to the fair will have an opportunity of visiting the soldiers' colony, which is only twenty-five miles from Tifton. The fair will be held on the day between Tifton and Fitzgerald. Quite a large number of Maconites will attend.

The Mother of Herman Franklin Files
Suit Against the Consolidated.

SAYS THE ROAD WAS AT FAULT

The Street Car Companies Will Be Required To Protect the Cars with Fenders in the Future.

Mrs. Mary Franklin, the mother of the young man who was instantly killed last week by a Consolidated car, has filed suit against the Atlanta Consolidated Street Railway Company in the sum of $20,000.

The suit was filed yesterday morning in the superior court by Attorneys Rosser & Carter and W. W. Viskanka, who represent Mrs. Franklin in the legal proceedings. Herman Franklin was killed by a car last week while he was riding his bicycle down Mitchell street. The young man was on his way home and is said to have been riding at a very rapid rate when he turned into Pryor street. Just as the rider made the turn at the corner of the street, an electric car was rolling swiftly over the rails going south. The motorist had cut off the current from the motors and the car was rolling down the street. The motorist said "he was running about five miles per hour and could have stopped the car had he seen young Franklin in time."

"My car was running not faster than five miles per hour," said the motorist. "I was looking ahead, when suddenly a wheelman dashed down Mitchell street and turned into Pryor. As he turned he swerved out into the center of the street, and his wheel slipped and he fell squarely upon the track upon which my car was running."

"In an instant the car was upon him. I seized the brakes, but it was too late, and the body was dragged along the smooth bricks until the wheels slid under the pressure of the brakes."

"Mrs. Franklin makes the allegation that the car was running much faster than is allowed by law. She claims that her son was exercising every caution and care, while the motorist failed entirely to ring the gong or in any way to give a danger signal that the car was approaching from behind."

"Mrs. Franklin alleges that the car was running much faster than the motorist states, and cites a section of the city code which requires the street car companies to have the schedules of street car crossings as regulated. The code does not permit a car to run above four miles an hour at street crossings, and only six miles per hour in the business portion of the city. Mrs. Franklin says the car was running far in excess of this schedule, and the accident occurred only three blocks from the passenger depot, which is the center of the city."

Street Cars To Use Fenders.

In the future the street car companies will doubtless be required to equip all cars with fenders in front for the protection of pedestrians and wheelmen.

With a fender in front of the car that killed young Franklin the accident would not have occurred. And a resolution has just been passed by council providing for equipment of all electric cars with this necessary protection. The resolution provides that the fenders be purchased by the companies and placed in operation by September 1. In case a car is run without a fender after that date, the company operating the car will be subject to a fine of $100.

President Hurt, of the Consolidated, is now writing with a prominent manufacturer for the purchase of fenders and cars with the latest fender. It is impossible for a person or object to be caught under the wheels and dragged to death. The fenders will be opened like a net, and will be fastened upon the front end of the car so as to project over the distance, yet not touch the ground. When the fender comes in contact with an object it will automatically close and will the object, carrying it in this position until the car can be stopped.

UNITED STATES COURT CASES.

Numerous Suits and Other Papers Filed Yesterday.

The Equitable Mortgage Company yesterday filed a suit against R. E. Fox, of Chattahoochee county, for $7,525, the amount of a mortgage that has been foreclosed. The company also filed a bill of sale against David C. Black for $1,061.

The United States court yesterday filed a suit against Milton Watts, postmaster at Jco, Gordon county, and his bondsmen, Messrs. Weed, of New York, for compensation as attorney in the case. The special master found a verdict for Weed for $7,500.

Many Still Hopeful.

Arthur Hanye, who is sentenced to be hanged next month, is still hopeful that his sentence will be commuted. He does not believe that he will be executed. The Christian young men of the city visit the jail almost every day and pray with the prisoner in his cell.

HIS BIKE BRIGADE

Chief Connolly Will Introduce the Wheel

in the Police Department.

ONLY WAY TO STOP SCORCHERS

Police Board Will Be Asked To Make an Appropriation for This Purpose.

Chief Connolly is determined to introduce the bicycle into the police department. At the next meeting of the board of police commissioners next Monday night he will put in a resolution asking for an appropriation for this purpose.

The chief's determination was prompted by his experiences with the scorchers on Peachtree street several nights ago. He has had a hard problem to solve in finding some safe method for stopping the fast riders. The first night the war was waged the officer thrust his billy stick through a wheel, tearing it to pieces, but bringing the rider to a dead standstill. This is the only method that has worked successfully so far.

Chief Connolly has no desire to tear up the bicycles, or to injure the riders, and he has been trying to find some method which will obviate these two objections. He once thought of the flying bolts, a contrivance used in South America for catching wild animals. It consists of several ropes with heavy tips, attached to a wooden center. These ropes are thrown at the bicycle and are so entangled in the wheels as to prevent further revolutions.

But the chief did not altogether like this plan, and has now settled on the bicycle. He will station several mounted cops on Peachtree with instructions to run down and catch any wheelman who is riding too fast for the safety of the public. The wheelmen of the city are completely delighted over this idea. They don't want any better stop.

But the chief says that his men will be trained so that they can ride as fast as any one in the city. A private race track will be provided for them, on which they will be required to practice several hours with instructions to run down and catch any wheelman who is riding too fast for the safety of the public. The board takes favorably to this new venture there will be a new fascination added to wheeling in Atlanta. It will be worth the full amount of the fine just to see those officers scorching. No doubt Peachtree will be lined with sightseers every afternoon. There would doubtless be many smash ups and few wheelmen caught.

has not as yet announced just what officers he will detail on the bicycle squad. It is said that Patrolman Frank Whiteley, Wimbush and Linam have strong backing. These three men would no doubt make efficient bicycle catchers. A slight glance at their physiques is sufficient evidence that they would make good.

Linam, especially, is one of those wiry little fellows weighing only about 120 lbs., who, with a little practice, could probably catch Bob Walther.

It is probable that the call officers will also be provided with wheels in case of urgent calls, as well as the men whose beats are on the outskirts of the city.

The bicycle will mark a new era in the police work of Atlanta.

If you are nervous and irritable, your blood needs cleansing and Hanye's Sarsaparilla is the medicine which you should take. It will make you strong in every way. It creates an appetite.

The Security Warehouse Co. announces it opening July 15th, Foundry street and eastern and Atlanta railroad. The warehouse is built of brick and has 160 feet front on railroad, with 20,000 square feet of space.

Mr. H. J. Neller is treasurer and manager. Mr. Neller was a prominent banker in Minneapolis and has no doubt considerable business. We predict for the Security Warehouse Company a splendid business.

Do not put off taking a spring medicine. Let your system break up the system. Take Hanye's Sarsaparilla now to expel disease and give you strength and health.

Low Rates to Cumberland and St. Simon's.—The Central of Georgia railway is now selling excursion tickets to these delightful seashore resorts at the following low rates: Tickets sold daily, limited to return until October 31st, Cumberland, $12.15; St. Simon's, $11.65.
